

Holiday Greetings from the WWP EN Staff

Hello everybody!

Just a quick holiday hello from the WWP EN office in Berlin. The weather outside is uninviting and we started thinking about the good times the network shared in 2017 - so we decided to send out this greeting - from us to you :)

The Study Visit

The 2017 Study Visit took place in Sofia, Bulgaria and was organized by the Bulgarian Gender Research Foundation, as well as their partners NAIA Association from the Targovishte Region. The visit included intense knowledge-exchange sessions, as well as reports on practices in perpetrator work from Bulgaria and beyond.

The Annual Workshop

From 11-13 October, Zagreb showed us nothing but good food, conversations and even better weather. We enjoyed each other's company, the interesting workshops and fascinating panels. Marianne Hester's keynote on Gender in Perpetrator Work was well received and led to engaged discussions around the topic. We would once again like to thank everybody involved in organizing such a wonderful event for WWP EN.

Webinars

2017 saw three WWP EN Webinars:

- 1) Nina George held a webinar on the incorporation of and cooperation with victim's services in perpetrator work,
- 2) Cassandra Jones informed us about the theoretical aspects behind the Impact Tool Kit and
- 3) Natalia Batenkova and Meghan Donevan spoke on pornography and how the issue can affect young people.

More information, as well as slides, are available for all webinars if you follow this link

If you are interested in receiving a recording for either Cassandra's or Natalia's and Meghan's webinar, please get in touch with Anna under anna.mckenzie@work-with-perpetrators.eu.

Additionally, we are always looking for people interested in holding WWP EN Webinars. If there is a topic you would like to hear or speak about, please get in touch with Anna, as well!

New Executive Director

In our December Newsletter, we were happy to announce that Alessandra Pauncz would be the new WWP EN Executive Director, a role about which she feels very enthusiastic and motivated. The first WWP EN staff office week in Berlin was a success and on 18 December, Alessandra moderated the first Skype Meeting for the WWP EN Equality Subcommittee.

THANK YOU EVERYBODY FOR A WONDERFUL 2017!

Best wishes,
WWP EN
