

UPDATES AND RESOURCES FROM OUR EUROPEAN PROJECTS

ANALYSIS OF POLICE PRACTISES FOR INTIMATE PARTNER VIOLENCE TACTICS

The TACTICS team is currently carrying out in-depth analysis of intimate partner violence related police practices and the state of multi-agency collaboration in the involved regions. The WWP team is conducting interviews with members about their collaboration with local police. For the Capacity building for multi-agency cooperation between police, victim and perpetrator services, the WWP team is preparing scripts to improve interactions with perpetrators.

RAISING YOUNGSTERS' AWARENESS ON #CONSENT

Through the CONSENT project, we are developing an awareness-raising campaign to enable young people to think critically about gender roles, stereotypes, consent and the implications of pornography on healthy intimate relationships. The campaign will run in all project countries and at the EU level via WWP media, with territorial activities in Italy and Spain in February 2024. As a precursor to the campaign, the CAM team will deliver an online workshop on 26th November within the national festival, L'eredità delle Donne, which is an important annual appointment in Italy focused on empowerment of women and girls. Registrations will open on 3rd November. A European event for potential multipliers will be launched soon...

The logo for 'FATHERS ROCK' is written in a white, hand-drawn, chalk-like font on a light-colored, irregularly shaped background that resembles a piece of paper or a rock.

ENGAGING FATHERS TO ENSURE THE SAFETY AND WELLBEING OF WOMEN AND CHILDREN

Through the Fathers Rock experience, partners in three different countries focused on preventing gender-based violence by engaging men who are (becoming) fathers through collaboration with key services. Almost three hundred professionals from Italy, Spain and Austria have been involved in the project activities thus far, participating in roundtables and capacity-building activities. As the project is in its final stages, the team is working on a multiagency model focusing on the accountability of services and the empowerment of their teams to support victims, address perpetrators and collaborate for an effective response to intimate partner violence. The model will be released publicly in January 2024.

SYSTEMIC APPROACHES ADDRESSING VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN

As the ASAP 2.0 project draws to a close, the team presented the findings and outcomes at the “Coordinating Comprehensive Responses to Gender-Based Violence” in Sardinia, Italy on 16 October.

To mark the project's official end, we proudly announce its final conference, “Systemic Approaches Addressing Violence against Women”. The one-day conference will be held online on 19 April 2024, featuring presentations on the ASAP 2.0 protocol for coordinated response to violence against women, including risk assessment, recidivism assessment, child protection and digital violence. The event will also showcase other models for multi-agency cooperation to establish effective inter-institutional collaboration developed within the CHANGE, TACTICS and MARVOW 2.0 projects.

TERRITORIAL COLLABORATION TO ADDRESS GENDER-BASED VIOLENCE

The CHANGE project underscores the importance of robust inter-institutional territorial collaboration in our ongoing commitment to address gender-based violence. This comprehensive 360° approach ensures the engagement of all key local stakeholders. As a testament to its effectiveness, over 300 frontline workers have been trained through ENGAGE, and approximately 2,600 students will be involved in educational activities. Furthermore, CHANGE is forging significant synergies with other initiatives: professionals in perpetrator programmes are now adopting the ASAP 2.0 model for collaboration with women's support services and utilising the CONSENT methodology in school activities.
